20 students filled out the survey corresponding to 42%. This is unfortunately a rather low response rate which makes it difficult to draw strong conclusions. 11 of these were 7th semester students and 9 9th semester.

73% state they spend 40+ hours or between 30-40 hours. 18% between 20-30 hours, and 9% between 0-10 hours. This is very acceptable except for the one person in the last category. Compared to the self-perception of work efforts 100% answer that their work-load is satisfactory. These questions were only answered by respectively 11 and 10 students though.

The respondents generally feel well-informed about coherence between study activities in the semester (80%). The assessment of the academic benefit is acceptable but less good than the previous year. 40% find it to be average, 40% big and 20% very big.

The respondents declare the most important competences obtained to be the understanding of stakeholders and destination development as well as intercultural collaborations.

The number of respondents decline when we look at the second part of the survey as only 4-10 students have answered to these questions.

70% of the respondents feel well-informed about practical issues.

The physical conditions is assessed mainly positive. Group work places not so much. This is also emphasized in the follow-up comments.

The evaluation of the study community is positive (70% satisfactory). A majority also agrees or completely agrees (90%) to thriving at their education. However, as this has to do with very few students it is difficult to draw too strong conclusions from this.
